CIA Deputy Sees Russia Looking to Peace Interval

BY WILSON C. WILSON

ST. LOUIS — (UPI) — Roger Amory, Jr., probably is the second-best or third-best informed American on what the Russian Communists are doing thinking and planning.

Amory is deputy chief for intelligence of the Central Intelligence Agency. CIA is the United States spy apparatus or, in more polite language, it is a counter-intelligence organization.

This well-informed American was making a speech the other day in Columbia, S. C. Amory's speech did not get the publicity it deserved despite the fact that what he had to say was pretty good news for U. S. citizens.

His story was that the Soviet Union is neither ready nor preparing for a war; that the Kremlin does not want a war although Communist Russia would fight if it must. Amory said the Russian leaders decided 18 months ago that their Communist economy had to have 15 years of peace to achieve their internal development plans.

Their economy is by no means mobilized for war or preparing for it now, Amory said. "They still have a balance between military and other expenditure," just as they did in 1953.

He believes the Soviet Union is not ready to risk a nuclear war over Berlin. Nikita Khrushchev, instead, thinks he can force the West to "chicken out."

"If the West is resolute," Amory said, "then I believe that the Soviet Union will be the ones to back down."

During the 15 years of peace which Amory is convinced the Soviet Union must have and urgently wants, the CIA expects the Kremlin to follow this general pattern:

1 -- Ploy its Sputnik diplomacy to the limit.

2 -- Stand out against all pressure in the areas now dominated by Communism.

3 -- Insist either after two nation talks between the Soviet Union and the United States or demand that satellite powers sit beside Soviet conference in numbers equal to that of the 4 -- Maintain at high pitch the work of trouble-making among the people's of non-Communist nations.

5 -- But softening this fifth column activity with some show of willingness to cooperate with governments over which the Kremlin exercises no control.

6 -- Continue the design policy of "divide and conquer," aid neutrals, wage war on neither side. Overthrowing and not supporting Communism.

Amory did not like to predict events of the next 15 years, largely will shape the long-term pattern of the future, war, peace, or whatever.

"We face a race for leadership in the world against militant Communists with terrorist faith," he said. "We must not jump them into a major military path while letting down our strength (although) they haven't got what it takes originally to challenge us this spring."

Amory said the Russian leaders had no definite long range picture. In a comparatively short time they are certain that the Soviet Union will be more powerful than ever.
